The Citizen wishes to call the attention of the ladies of Berea and vicinity this week to the new feature in the price reports. It gives a list of those articles of country produce most bought by the stores in town, and the prices being paid for them. It does not promise, of course, that these prices will be the same thru-out the week, but only tells what they were on the day before publication. As there is little change, however, from day to day, this new feature will enable the women with something to sell to keep track of the prices and sell when it will be most profitable, and for the women who buy to find what is a fair price. The list will be published every week.

NEW BANK BUILDING

The Berea National Bank, of which S. E. Welch is president and John L. Gay cashier, has bought the property next to Welch's store, formerly owned by the Lester estate, and will put up a fine new building. Construction work is expected to begin early in the spring, and the building will be one of the finest in town. It will be especially equipped for carrying on a banking business, with fire proof vaults, fine safes, and all the other safeguards necessary to protect the funds of the bank and make the depositors safe against loss thru fire or theft. Hard times have evidently not hit Berea yet, and The Citizen congratulates the town on the new addition. It will have and the men who are able and enterprising enough to build it.

GEORGETOWN 6—BEREA 0.

Team Defeated in Football Because of Lack of Training—Some Good Work Done.

The Berea College football team lost a fast game to Georgetown College at Georgetown Saturday by a score of 6 to 0.

The Varsity reached Georgetown at 11 a. m. There was no one on hand to direct them, as the Georgetown manager had entirely neglected his duty. Thus an hour was wasted waiting for the manager, Mr. Weakly, to be found and for him to worry thru some negotiations for a room. Finally the team was given a room on the third floor of the Hotel Lancaster, which was no credit either to the team which was supposed to be entertaining, or the hotel which furnished it.

After dinner, while on the way to the game, the members of the team had the privilege of meeting Caleb Powers, who is in prison there awaiting trial. This was an opportunity which was certainly appreciated by all the team and apparently by Mr. Powers, his especial interest having been aroused by the fact that the captain of the Berea team is a Mr. Powers.

Georgetown kicked off to Berea's 20-yard line, from where the ball was advanced over half the length of the field and lost on account of some bad fumbling. From this time on the game was quite evenly fought although Berea apparently had the advantage, having the ball over two-thirds of the time in her opponent's territory.

The game as a whole was very open most of the gains being made around the end and a few thru the tackles. Punting was very much in evidence, as was also the forward pass. On the whole Georgetown outplayed Berea on the forward pass but Berea made the most ground with it. Probably the finest play of the game was the catching of a forward pass by Georgetown's right end. He was unable to reach the ball and fell forward and caught it as he fell. The next best play was undoubtedly the long end run around left end by Powers on a forward pass, from Berea's 25-yard line to Georgetown's 30-yard line.

The point in which Georgetown was superior to Berea was in her better training. The team showed the effect of its coaching while Berea played raggedly and with poor team work. The individual men outclassed Georgetown's and if they had been thoroughly trained the game would have been a walk-over for Berea. As it was she was more than once in reach of a touchdown, but lost her chance thru ragged play. The backfield played well except that Eastman evidently was not at home at half, where he played for the first time. Parts of the line showed a tendency to play too high, while others were ragged. Swope, Wheeler and Flannery deserve especial mention for the way they broke thru the line and tackled behind it.

The defeat hinged on the superior training of the Georgetown players, their touchdown being a buck thru right tackle when the whole team picked the man up and carried him over. If our men had trained harder and more consistently the game would have been ours.
